Onionhead® peels feelings

peeling feelings...teaching us what to do with what we feel

New York, NY. (September 17, 2009) – Do you ever feel like children aren't prepared for the world we live in today? Even if they have been provided the important basic reading, writing and math skills, there is still something big missing. Without being equipped to understand and choose what children can do with what they feel, they will continually be desensitized, remote or fall prey to the emotional emergency in our country. Onionhead® teaches children and teens (well, adults too) about emotions and feelings through a new animated character who has just arrived in the main stream.

Onionhead® was originally developed by a mother-daughter team 16 years ago. The mother, a counselor herself, conceived the idea for adults. Her 2 year old grandson, considered a spectrum child, demanded that Onionhead® be done for children. So the daughter, an artist and writer, birthed the character. That animated character has grown into a full new product line and catalogue that provide a deeply meaningful gift alternative for the holidays – for life. Onionhead®'s product line now includes collectibles, toys, clothes, games and new books.

About Onionhead® and Company

Onionhead® and Company is committed to the education, engagement and entertainment of emotions while being environmentally conscious at all times. We believe that every child deserves the right to reach their full potential. The key to ensuring that kind of future is cultivating the ability to navigate through feelings appropriately. We help kids to learn how to become great communicators by nurturing their problem solving skills and conflict resolution options. Our printed material is made on either tree free or 100% recycled paper. We have laboratory certification that Onionhead® products are 100% lead and heavy metal free. Our products are proudly made in the U.S.A. We promise that whatever we put in the hands of your child, we would trust completely in the hands of our own.
